E. F. Forbes, Sergaut of Co. A. 17 Ky, V. L. in the late unideasautus igs left with us a picture drawn by himcelf of a indicrous incident of camp life. It is entitled "I'm broke of my night's rest". The story is as follows:

Alter the evacuation of Corinth,

Miss., the army moved south-west, and about the second day after we left Corbith, and near the Alabama line wa cama to a cross-roul about plefit. whelr our regiment, the 17th Kentucky, filed to the right and marched nearly south, haited came to a front and stacked arms on the side of the road and lay down to sleep. In the rear of the armes and color line a guard was posted to walk the line of arms keep, things quiet and report sudden orders or alarm. About the time the tired men were all usleep and as the guard at the south eml of the arms turned to go 2 00 north, he saw that a number of cattle 2 00 belonging to the citizens living near by 2 00 had followed him down the line. As he was slowly passing from north to south he endeavored to drive them gently back, by waving his glittering musket to and tro. The flash of the bright weapon in the moon-ligit frightened them and they ran up the road making some noise. A two year old heifer endeavored to escape by springing through the stack of arms, and lu so doing came in contact with the mint of the bayonets. Giving a loud bellow it sprang oil the arms and in among the sleeping soldiers.
